Wendy Turner Larsen, Registered Psychologist, Master of Counselling/Psychology and Masters of Education. Turner Larsen Consulting, Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada

As a registered psychologist, Wendy is well equipped to work with diverse employee groups within organizations and to lead and facilitate relevant and high value Emotional SMARTS® learning experiences. Wendy earned a Master of Arts in Counseling/Psychology and a Master of Education with a specialization in adult education and leadership development. She studied internationally and graduated cum laude. After two years of work in a U.S psychiatric hospital, Wendy established her private counselling practice and she is highly regarded for her expertise in the area of workplace stress. Wendy is valued for her insight into work and home challenges and her problem solving ability with individuals and organizations – to say nothing of the care, concern and passion with which she carries out her professional work with all clients.

In 2000 Wendy designed and started facilitating a 3 day workshop addressing specific emotional intelligence competencies. This session has been successfully delivered to a wide range of corporations. In addition, Wendy established a successful women's breakfast workshop series that delivers high quality training and development for business and community women. Her years of training and her experience and in-depth work with people through her counselling practice has established Wendy as an expert in the area of emotional intelligence. She is proud to be on the Emotional SMARTS® Facilitation team recognizing that the Emotional SMARTS® model represents her beliefs and values in terms of what individuals, organizations and cultures need to do in order to consistently function productively and live well!

Wendy was born and raised in Saskatchewan – she loves the prairies, the people, and their work ethic. She is a devoted family woman and excited about her opportunity to fuel people's passion for growth and development in her home province.
